Three kids: Daniel, Steve and Tom decided to visit one spooky house on Halloween. It is said that the house has been haunted. Some people once used to live there. It was 20 years ago, but now it is abandoned after a strange accident happened. Someone died there under some weird circumstances. Kids in their costumes wanted to enter that house during the Halloween night. So, Daniel was dressed as the devil, Steve was dressed as Frankenstein and Tom was dressed as a vampire. Halloween night has finally come and kids were excitingly walking towards the spooky house.

On their way to the house, they saw many of their friends masked in various costumes (who they could recognize even with their masks on). The whole town was under a horror mood, and the props and decorations were everywhere. You could see skeletons, carved pumpkins, hanging ghosts and various other stuff around. So, they finally saw that old and haunted house. It was located at the end of the town. Nobody was present nearby. The place looked totally abandoned. The house itself was almost in ruins, the fence was broken, and the trees in the garden were lifeless. It looked like already decorated for Halloween on purpose, except it was not like that since it looked like that throughout the year. When they finally entered the house they saw that none of the furniture was in good condition.

Everything was broken and destroyed. The spider's web and dust were just everywhere. The place was littered with the dust. They noticed one big portrait on the wall or something like that near the stairs.... There was something really spooky about the portrait. They all started screaming at once and ran away immediately from the house. They stopped after 100 meters on the road. Then, still under the influence of the scary portrait, they started the conversation:

Daniel: "That man on portrait terrified me!"

Steve: "Where have you seen man on the picture?"

Tom: "But where you guys have seen a picture actually?"

After realizing that they had seen different things in the same place, they got petrified and swiftly ran home. After they revealed their story nobody believed them. Finally, they persuaded some other kids from school to join them there. All of them went into that house and the boys pointed their fingers on the place where a portrait was earlier. They did not see any portrait, image or so, just the old dusty wall!
