Snakes: A mother of one man died. She had some snakes as pets, and one of them once bit her and she died of intoxication. He didn't want to visit that place for years. Then once, he wanted to renovate the house. When he entered there, everything was covered in dust. Suddenly, he heard some noise in the walls. He was afraid and called some people for help. After they crashed the walls, about hundred of various snakes emerged from there! How that snakes got there and survived between walls it is not known yet!

Owls: It is said that once in the middle age, during a witch hunt, one warlock managed to escape the death many times because of owls. One of his abilities was to control owls and use their sight as his own. So, mostly during the night, he could see anyone approaching the forest, and spy the village, since owls were at the village as well. People could see those scary creatures with huge eyes in trees, in their yards, streets... Finally, they caught him somehow and sentenced to death. When he was executed, many owls died at the same moment as well, located in the forest, in the village, some even in people's homes where they were kept as pets! It is said that since his death, all the owls in that area died with him since they were connected!

Black cats: it is said that black cats are relatives to witches. There is one story about this matter in one town. There was a cursed black cat, and each time someone encountered her, he would get some accident. One morning, one man wanted to go with his tractor in a field near the town, and he saw the black cat lying there not wanting to move away from the tractor's path. He yelled at the cat, but the cat didn't move. Then he threw a rock at her. The cat ran away. Then later, in the field, while driving his tractor, it suddenly started malfunctioning and turned upside down, for no reason! The man got heavy injuries! Also, during winter, a woman wanted to go nearby to ski. But at her doorstep she saw the black cat, blocking the doorway. She yelled at the cat as well, but the cat didn't move even a bit. Then she hit the cat with a stick. Cat ran away. Later, on skiing, she fell and got severe injuries!

Spiders: it is also said that spiders are scary not just because of their appearance, but because of its venoms which could hurt and kill animals and humans. Once, a dark wizard cursed some people in one society, and later, some of them were sick. They said that spiders were crawling at them, but their relatives did not see anything. But sick people described them as the giant size of man's fist, black... later, they would die. They died from spider's poison, but after searching their homes, there were no spiders!
