

OLD VILLAGE

A kid asked his grandfather in a village: "Grandpa, can you please tell me why our village is actually called the new village and a place there in a forest up the hill is called the old village since there is no village at all. Just a flat field with some scattered rocks and a big forest. Why is that?"

Grandfather answered him: "See my child, back then a few hundred years ago, people built a village there right on that place where you see the rocks now. It was actually built to protect from the enemies, raids, and so on. That is why the village from that time was uphill and a little further than it is now. But then something happened. In those old times, a few soldiers were killed somewhere in those areas at night. It is said that they were killed by vampires. And so, they became vampires themselves. It was said back then that they terrorized people. Some people were missing without any trace, some animals were killed randomly... You could feel some eeriness, basically like the village was haunted."

HORROR VALLEY

horrorvalley.com

One night, the events culminated. Some young men and women went to a picnic in nature. They sat fire usually, brought some music instruments, and food. They were talking and having fun since back then there were no clubs, coffee bars and internet like these days. Old people used to go to sleep earlier, as they were afraid of vampires, but young people didn't care. So, one night they went on that picnic, and something happened. The whole village was awakened by the terrible screams from there. Nobody knew what was happening. After the villagers realized that their daughters and sons were not at home at that moment and that those roars and screams actually came from the place where the picnic took place, villagers grouped themselves, took guns and went there.

When they finally got there, they saw countless dead bodies scattered across the fireplace. They were dead with the apparent bites on their necks! It seemed like no blood was left in their bodies! That huge tragedy scared villagers to death, and they moved from there. They started building their houses lower where we are now. That is why this place is called just the New Village and that uphill area the Old Village even there is nothing except the field, stones and a forest. And yes, those rocks which you saw were actually parts of their houses. Somehow it all got destroyed. If you noticed that each house here has a wreath of garlic next to the door, this is it. A fear from vampires remained, as that garlic is supposed to scare the vampires off. Even today people are putting garlic in front of the houses, my mother did as well. Your grandmother is also superstitious about this.

